

Abstract

The present invention relates to a method for producing cheese with a low fat content from cows milk wherein milk or a fraction of milk is treated with a phospholipase, and the treated milk or milk fraction is used for producing cheese. The method results in a decreased oiling off of 5 the cheese when heated, and/or in an improved cheese yield.